Remnants of a Lost Duet

MELODIES & MEMORIES #2

Amanda Wen

Fan-favorite Amanda Wen is back with a story that will break—and remake—your heart

Hungry for her next promotion, investigative reporter Keira McLane starts digging into the mysterious history of a local bridge, where a baby is said to have disappeared without a trace in the early 1940s. Unbeknownst to her, her childhood sweetheart, contemporary Christian music artist Wyatt Bettridge, is back in town, in part to help his elderly great aunt—whose property adjoins the bridge—and in part to discern God’s calling on the future of his career.

In 1967, Lillian Woodard is one of the few female journalists at the Peterson Post. She’s eager to prove herself capable of more than just fluff pieces and home decor columns. When her boss assigns her and fellow reporter John Ridge to cover the mysterious bridge just outside town, she knows this will be her big break.

As Keira and Lillian begin their respective investigations, the story they uncover—one of unimaginable tragedy, a father’s sacrifice, and deep devotion—will change the course of both their lives forever.

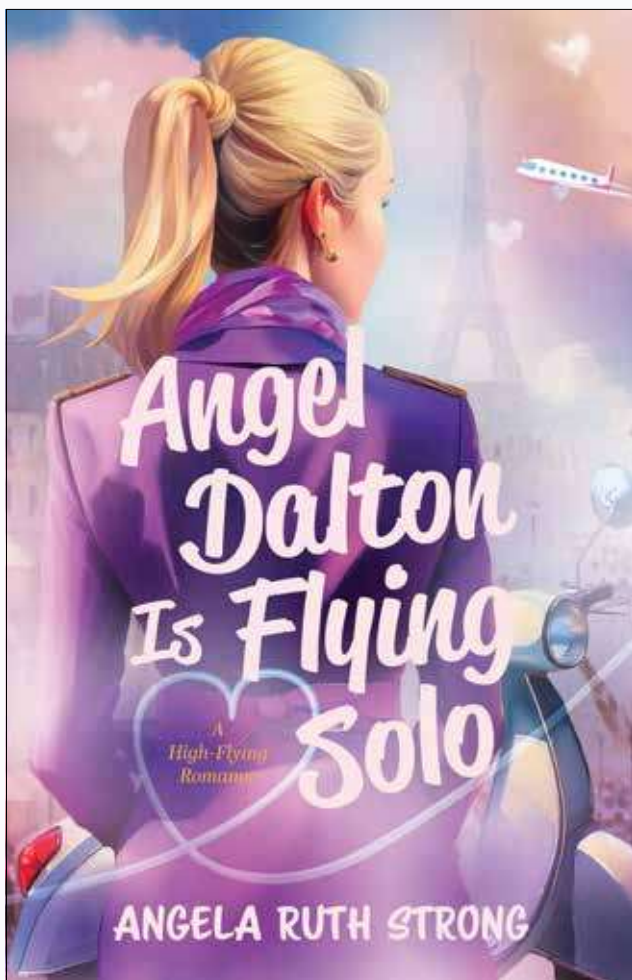

Amanda Wen is the award-winning author of several novels, including The Songs That Could Have Been and Roots of Wood and Stone. Amanda is also an accomplished professional cellist and pianist who frequently performs with orchestras, chamber groups, choirs, and her church’s worship team. A lifelong denizen of the flatlands, Amanda currently lives in Kansas with her patient, loving, and hilarious husband, their three adorable Wenlets, and a snuggly Siamese cat.

Unique Selling Points

- Author has won both Selah and Carol Awards for outstanding Christian fiction
- A triple-timeline story that touches on deeply human topics like adoption, mental illness, and single fatherhood

“Readers of Susan Meissner and Patti Callahan Henry will marvel at the expert and seamless way Amanda Wen moves us from past to present.”

—Rachel McMillan, best-selling author of The Mozart Code on Echoes of a Silent Song

Angel Dalton Is Flying Solo

A HIGH-FLYING ROMANCE

Angela Ruth Strong

A high-flying story of international travel that takes readers on a journey they'll never forget

Three years after a bitter divorce from the heir to the Dalton Hotels, Angel Dalton sets out to conquer the world. Her flight attendant's wages may be humble, but the moment the plane is wheels up on her first international flight, she can make herself believe anything is possible. Her goal? Visit thirty countries before she turns thirty. Everything seems to be going well—until she runs into Graham, the best man from her wedding, on the plane and learns that her ex has painted her as a gold digger to the media.

Angel wants to accomplish her travel goal on her own, but when she finds herself in a tight spot, she's forced to call Graham for help. What began as a way to prove something to herself slowly morphs into a spiritual journey through the great churches and cathedrals of Europe, as well as a journey of the heart as she finds herself falling for Graham.

When the past comes back to haunt them, Angel arrives at a place where seeking God's presence in her own life just might require sacrificing her heart's desire.

Angela Ruth Strong is a flight attendant, the founder of IdaHope Christian Writers, and the award-winning author of the Love Off Script series and Finding Love in Big Sky, Montana, which was released as a movie in 2021. She lives in Meridian, Idaho, with her husband. Learn more at angelaruthstrong.com.

THE MCKINLEY RANCH #1

Sara Davison

First installment in a new, power-packed romantic suspense series by an award-winning writer

Kane McKinley has never sought out trouble—it just always seems to find him. For years he butted heads with the law in his small Manitoba town on the Canada-US border. Then his parents disappeared without a trace, leaving Kane, his Deaf older brother Adam, and their three younger brothers on their own on the family ranch.

Kane is determined to stay on the straight and narrow to be there for the rest of the McKinley boys. But one frigid January night he encounters a desperate family dumped off by smugglers on the American side of the border and attempting to make it on foot across the frozen prairies to Canada. Unable to bear the thought of them freezing to death, Kane breaks the law to help them to safety.

He doesn't care that he's ticked off the local police sergeant, but for reasons he can't explain, he cares very much what the new officer in town, Sierra Delgado, thinks of him. Now Kane's impulsive decision to get involved in a cause he never asked for might cost him and his four brothers everything.

Sara Davison is a two-time Christy Award finalist and winner of the HOLT Medallion, a Cascade Award, and two Carol Awards. She lives near Niagara Falls, Canada, with her husband and the sweet kitty who somehow managed to change Sara's mind about never being a cat person. Learn more at ontheedgesuspense.com.

THE ART OF LOVE & DANGER #3

Crystal Caudill

She is determined to prove her worth. He is determined to prove his love.

Flossie Gibson is determined to prove women can thrive without marriage. Capable and caring, she has built a pottery business that offers widows a way to support themselves. But not everyone in Gilded Age Cincinnati approves of such innovations, and Flossie finds herself on the receiving end of pressure from competitors, intimidation from labor unions, and even vandals that threaten to shut down her business and dash her dreams.

Mortimer Stephens anticipates becoming an eventual partner at Gibson Stove Works, but that can only happen if he keeps Mr. Gibson happy. When a labor strike leads to threats against the Gibson family and Mortimer's controversial opinions put him at odds with his employer, Mortimer is reassigned to work with Flossie and protect her from whoever is determined to destroy her pottery.

Flossie wants nothing to do with the man who stabbed her in the back years ago, but Mortimer seeks to restore their friendship and convince her that perhaps marriage isn't such a terrible idea after all. Together, they will discover that the most beautiful creations are formed in the crucible of crisis and held together by the bonds of grace.

Crystal Caudill is the author of faith-filled, "dangerously good" historical romance. Her debut novel, Counterfeit Love, was a 2023 Carol Award finalist, and her novella, Star of Wonder, won the 2024 Christy Award for short-form fiction. She loves history, hot tea, all things bookish, and the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. She is a stay-at-home mom, caregiver, and chaos organizer. When she isn't writing, Crystal can be found hanging with her family and playing board games at her home outside Cincinnati, Ohio. Learn more at crystalcaudill.com.

What Remains Is Grace

A Novel

Tina N. Shelton

Award-winning author pens a moving literary tale about the inconvenience of aging and the power of going home

It's 1997, and college grad Grace Downing is taking the next big step in her career: a teaching job on the North Shore of Chicago. She packs up her life and makes the journey, only to discover upon arrival that the offer has been rescinded. Reeling, she refuses to return home and ends up on the South Side, teaching Honors English at the very same high school where her childhood crush now works.

Longtime family friend Candi has been living in Grace's childhood home for the last several years, and had been caring for their elderly neighbor Nelda, who passed away the year prior. So when a devastated Grace calls her, Candi welcomes her with open arms despite internal battles with grief, memories, and questions about Nelda's life—and the looming decision of whether to care for her estranged husband next.

When Grace's sister comes to stay with them, the three band together to learn more about Nelda's history, her myriad secrets, and her unfinished stories. As the women wrestle with their individual pasts, they grow into roles they didn't expect—and discover God in ways new and profound for each of them.

Tina N. Shelton is the registrar at Chicago Theological Seminary and a pastor in the Northern Illinois Conference of the United Methodist Church. She is the award-winning author of This Ain't No Promised Land. Find her at tinanshelton.com.

BEST LAID PLANS #3

Grace Hitchcock

A Regency-era enemies-to-lovers romance set in the magnificent Scottish Isles

Tess Hale has always been taught to fend for herself, but she never needed to until the night bounty hunters come knocking. It's 1813 in Great Britain, and Tess's best laid plans crumble when her father sends her alone in the dead of night to an island cottage to escape them. She finds herself in a world of warring clans she didn't know existed.

After a decade as a spy separated from his clan, Jamie Malcom has a duty to fulfill as next in line as chief—but his absence means he must earn his people's loyalty. He pursues a treasure stolen from his clan long ago, and it leads him straight to Tess.

As Tess grapples with her past, Jamie vows to protect her future—but lies revealed shatter the trust they had been building. For purposes beyond themselves, they are thrust into a marriage neither of them wanted . . . at first.

In the finale to the Best Laid Plans series, Grace Hitchcock invites readers to the sweeping Highlands and beautiful Scottish Isles with a romance guaranteed to delight.

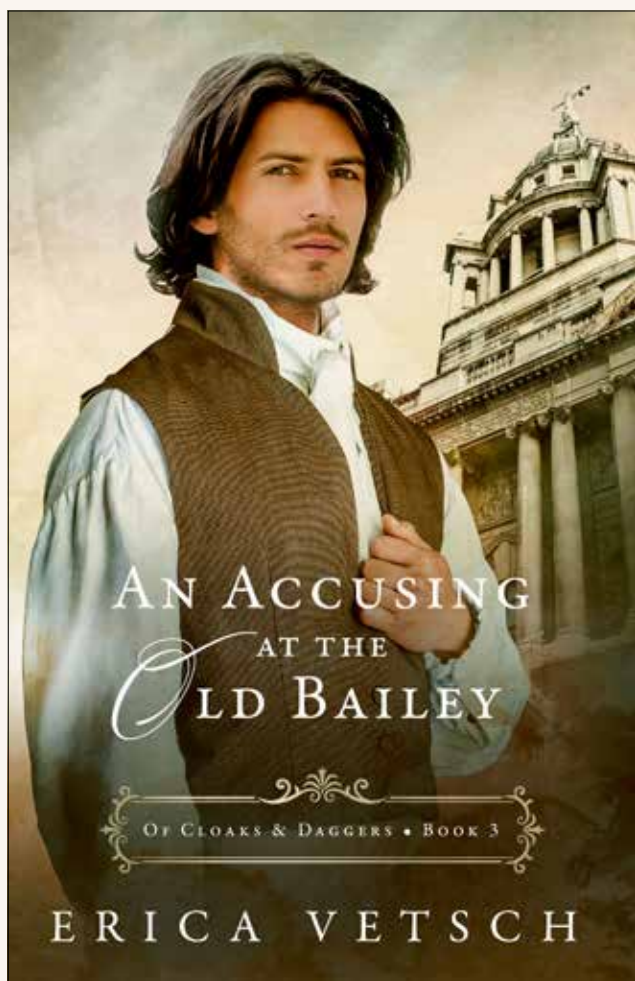

Grace Hitchcock is the award-winning author of the Best Laid Plans series and other historical novels and novellas. She holds a master's degree in creative writing and a bachelor of arts in English with a minor in history. She lives near New Orleans with her husband, sons, and daughter. Find her at gracehitchcock.com.

Unique Selling Points

OF CLOAKS & DAGGERS #3

Erica Vetsch

The thrilling finale to the highly rated Regency romance series

Sir Bertrand Thorndike is on another mission—this one in the scientific community. But when a simple game of espionage becomes a murder investigation and Bertie's friend Rhynwick Davies is the accused, Bertie enlists the help of his pseudo-fiancée Philippa Cashel to spare Rhynwick from the gallows.

Together, they delve into poisons, passions, and peril. With the true killer still on the loose, Bertie must balance proving Rhynwick's innocence with his plans to persuade Philippa to make their false engagement real.

The final installment in the Of Cloaks & Daggers series from a New York Times best-selling author will be the biggest test yet of Bertie and Philippa's skill and bravery—and of their love.

Erica Vetsch is a New York Times best-selling author, an ACFW Carol Award winner, and a Romantic Times top pick for her previous books, which include the Of Cloaks & Daggers, Thorndike & Swann Regency Mysteries, and Serendipity & Secrets series. This transplanted Kansan now makes her home in Minnesota. Find her at ericavetsch.com.

JAGGED EDGES #1

Kelly Borjas

The riveting start to an adventure-driven romantic suspense series from a debut author

Determined travel blogger Julia Stevens is on her final assignment in snowy Silverberg, Colorado. She's running from her past—and God—but the charm of small-town life brings little comfort when she's face-to-face with the winter sport that killed her sister: skiing. Upon her arrival in town, she discovers a dead body and is quickly compelled to research the situation, give justice to the man's story, and kick off her new career in journalism.

Cade Haskins is back home after a failed mission and his subsequent retirement from the DEA. His father's declining health has pushed Cade to prioritize family, and he helps at the historic Silverberg Hotel on his dad's behalf. When Julia shows up at the hotel, Cade becomes her local contact. He quickly realizes she has a knack for sniffing around where she shouldn't, and he attaches himself to her side.

With the local death connected to a meth ring, Julia's investigation has unknowingly put a target on her back. As the danger increases and she begins to learn more about Cade and his family, she finds herself trusting the God she was running from. And Cade? He doesn't want to get dragged back into DEA work, but it seems like he may not have a choice if he wants to protect Julia . . . and his growing attraction to her.

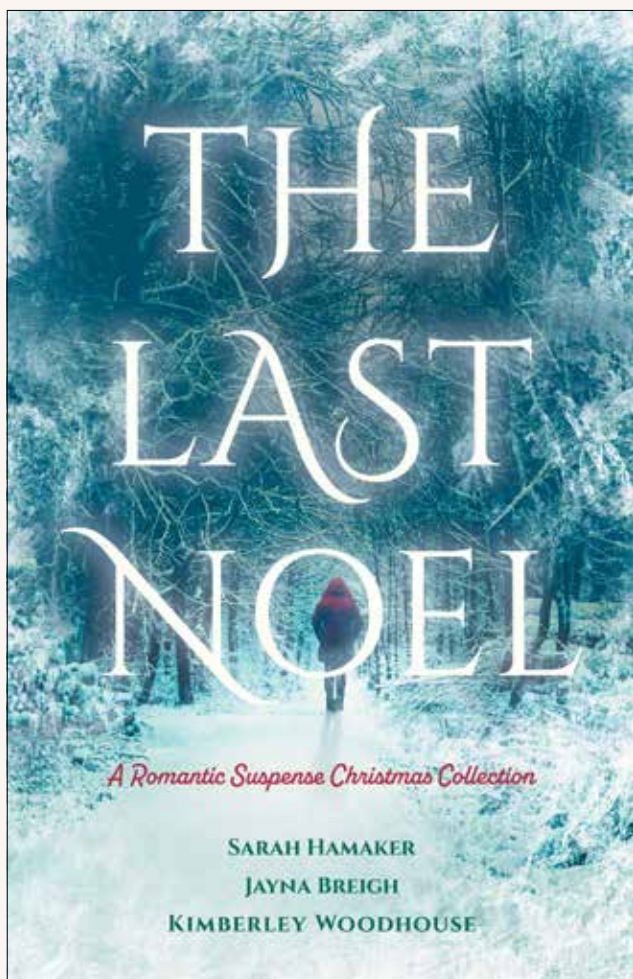

Kelly Borjas grew up in Southwest Colorado and later moved to Southern California. She has a degree in communication studies from Biola University and a master's in leadership and organizational studies from Azusa Pacific University. She is a cohost of the Lit Ladies podcast. Miss Beth Bettencourt

A Bynum, Georgia Novel

Eva Marie Everson

Eva Marie Everson has sold more than 275,000 books

It's 1962, and twenty-seven-year-old Beth Bettencourt's world is turned upside down when she wakes to hear a man snoring in her house.

She's alone; her parents are in Europe mending their hearts after the unexpected death of Beth's twin sister, Elise. Back at home in Bynum, Georgia, Beth tends to her kindergarten and closely guards her own heart. While beautiful and a beloved member of the community, Beth is an unusual specimen for her time as she nears thirty and remains unmarried.

Beth harbors deep-seated unforgiveness against Elise, who excelled over Beth throughout their childhood and then ran off with Beth's beau after being jilted herself. Not only that, but she took their grandmother's ring, which had been promised to Beth.

Now, with Elise dead, her parents gone, the local DA in pursuit of Beth's affections, and her brother-in-law attempting to return the stolen ring, a stranger enters her home and her world. David Patrick Martin seems ready to break down her wall of indifference and find the core of Miss Beth Bettencourt. But can he be trusted with Beth's past, her present, and most importantly, her future?
